Several such tickets were suggested. Boies, Flower, Whitney and others were mentioned. The ticket which received the most considera-tion was raimer and Hill. The former, it is aimed, can carry both Indiana and Illinois. The latter can certainly carry New York. This ticket was not the reult of off-hand talk. for agricultural products, such as cotton, wheat and tobacco, and for manufactured articles that will not deteriorate by storage for a few months. Much of Mr. Pfeffer's speech was in denunciation of nsury, which he said was breaking down the republic. The people, he said, were in earnest about that matter. The republic would go down unless the people were saved, and there was no way of saving them except by destroying the great evil of usury. This bill was on that line. It was suggestive and helpful, and at least deserved the consideration of the senate.

Mr. Chandler asked Mr. Pfeffer whether he considered the question of the constitutional power of congress to lend money on real estate and agricultural products.

Mr. Pfeffer said that he had examined the constitutional question, and that he believed that congress had as perfect authority to lend money to the people as it had to provide for carrying mails or packages, or determining the rates which railroads may charge for the carriage of freights or passengers.

At the close of his speech the bill went over without action.

Mr. McPherson gave notice of his intention to address the senate next Wednesday on the bill for the free coinage of silver, and Mr. Morgan gave notice that he would do so tomorrow, as he expected that there would then be a quorum in the senate.

The Tin Plate Bill to Occupy Several Days in Congress, Etc.

Washington, June 13.—It is the present intention of the democratic managers to call up the tin-plate bill when the fortifications appropriation bill is disposed of by the house. Consideration of the tin-plate bill will probably occupy several days, so that it is doubtful if any other tariff measure will be called up during the week. Several conference reports are expected, and, if presented, will occupy the attention of the house after the tariff bill is acted upon.

It is reported Here today that Judge George V. Massey, of Wilmington, Del., had been tendered the office of justice of the United States supreme court, made vacant by the death of Justice Bradley; but it is impossible to verify the report either at the white house or at the department of justice. By authority of the president, two small islands located in the main channel of the Matanzas river at St. Augustine, Fla., lying east of and opposite what is known as the old power-house lot, have been reserved and set apart for military purposes.

The floor was accorded to the committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. Otis, of Kansas, asked consent for the present consideration of the resolution reciting improper conduct on the part of Secretary Noble and Commissioner Carter in regard to the Maxwell, New Mexico, land grant—said conduct being alleged to be in pursuance of a conspiracy entered into some years ago by Stephen B. Absenteeism and indifference ruled supreme. After the passage of a few local measures, the fortifications appropriation bill was taken up, but no final action was taken. A few public land bills were passed. Mr. Payne, of New York, objected and

A NOVEL CASE,

In Which the Governor of Georgia Calls Upon the Governor of Georgia. Calls

Upon the Governor of South Carolina.

Columbia, S. C., June 13.—(Special.)—Governor Tillman and Governor Northen are likely to have another extradition controversy. The issue this time is an exceedingly novel one and perhaps without a parallel in the history of requisitions. The facts of the case are: Andy Cardiar, while rowing In a cance on the Savannah river opposite Hart county, Georgia, and Anderson county, South Carolina, was fired at by Mr. J. S. Simpson. Cardiar had the case brought up at the recent term of the court of general sessions, and a true bill was brought in against Simpson, on the charge of assault with attempt to murder. Simpson, anticipating the requisition, wrote Governor Tillman that if he had to be tried for any crime it would have to be in the South Carolina courts, as the cance was nearest the South Carolina soil when the shot was on South Carolina soil when the shot was fired. Simpson is willing to stand his trial in the South Carolina courts. Governor Tillman is undecided whether he will honor the requisition, and if he is satisfied that the case should be tried in this state, will so write Governor Northen. A preliminary hearing of the case will be had during the week. Upon the Governor of South Carolina.

New Orleans, June 13.—The situation today is much more serious than at any time during the present high water. Especially is this true of the levee within a few miles of New Orleans. Last night at 11 o'clock a serious break occurred at Belmont levee, St.
James parish. It was not long in reaching the width of seventy-five feet, and is reported to be seven feet deep. There is a small batture in front, but the work of closing will be, in the opinion of those upon the scene, a very difficult task. There is a force of 200 men at

Homeopathists in Convention.
Washington, June 13.—The forty-fifth session of the American institute of homeopathy was opened here at 3 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. Theo Y. Kinne, of Paterson, N. J., presiding. There were about one hundred members of the institute present at the first meeting, which was largely devoted to hearing reports of the several standing committees. The general report of the bureau of organization, registration and statistics showed that there had been a general advance in homeopathy all along the line during the year. The reports stated that there are in the United States forty reperal and thirty-nine special homeopathic hospitals, at which 51, 294 patients were treated last year. The death rate was 3.31 per cent. It was also shown that there are in the United States fifty-five homeopathic dispensaries and thirty homeopathic journals.

dissolved between June 19th and June 25th.

Balfour added that the government would conclude the Irish education and several other bills before parliament was dissolved, but it will be impossible to proceed with the Irish local government bill.

James Stuart, radical, member for Hoxton division of Shoreditch, asked whether the government would take care that writs for the election of members of the new parliament would reach the boroughs so as to enable the election to be held on Saturday.

Balfour replied that not only the business of the house of commons, but that of the house of lords must also be concluded before fixing the exact date of dissolution. He, therefore, could not then promise to fix a date so that the elections would take place on Saturday.

The liberals interpret Mr. Balfour's evasion in regard to the date of the dissolution of parliament is showing a design to prevent borough elections occurring on Saturday.

PROMPT ACTION OF THE WHITE MEN In Disarming the Excited Negroes Did the Work,

AND A RACE WAR IS AVERTED.

But Negro Domination in Oklahoma Is at an End-The Prisoner Carried Off to a Kansas Jail.

Guthrie, O. T., June 13.—At 1 o'clock this morning Folice Officers Lester and Kitchen, with one or two citizens, ordered a lot of negroes, stationed on a corner next to the jail, to move on. Several offered resistance, but the officers used their clubs effectually. Several decent negroes, excited by recent race disturb-ances, jumped on boxes and made speeches to the excited crowds. Two or three shots were fired. A big, burly negro, named Perkins, yelled: "Hang the editor of The News!" There was a disposition to act upon the suggestion, but the whites defied them to do it. Sheriff Hixon and his deputies rushed in and quelled the dis-turbance, and the excited people were dispersed. The editor of The News walked down Oklahoma avenue between two officers, at 2 o'clock, seemingly secure. A company to patrol the city was organized, and is under the leadership of good men. At 2 o'clock this morning a large m of men paraded the streets. There is no telling what will happen. The sheriff and police are resolute. The excitement is intense. Negroes are congregated on all corners, and, it seems, trouble will occur at the jail.

Comparative quiet reigns this morning. The disarmament of the boisterous negroes and whites had much to do with calming the excited people and no more trouble is anticipated. SLAIN BY A PREACHER. Another Bloody Murder from the Line of Kentucky.

Rentucky.

Bristol, Tenn., June 13.—(Special.)—Another bloody murder comes from the Kentucky line near the home of the famous desperado, Hall. This time a preacher shoots down a drunken rascal who attempts his life with a bowie knife. Rev. J. W. Pannell, a crippled preacher and W. R. Davidson, a tough character, became involved in a difficulty in which Davidson lost his life. The cause of the tragedy was a trifling one. Davidson had been sued by a party to whom he owed a small debt. When the trial came up he filled himself with liquor and instead of going to attend to his case he marched off towards the home of Pannell, whom he accused of being responsible for the cause of the lawsuit. Pannell knew that as he was a cripple Davidson could easily overpower him and remonstrated with him to let the matter drop. Instead of acceding to the preacher's wishes he drew a large bowie knife from his inside pocket and was about to plunge it into his victim's body. The latter knew there was no use to run, so he whipped out a large caliber pistol and fired three shots in rapid succession, all of which entered Davidson's body. He died in a very few moments. Pannell is having his preliminary hearing at this time and it is very evident that he will be acquitted.

Citizens of Chattanooga Keep a Prisone From Being Lynched. Chattanooga, Tenn., June 13.—A negro who confessed to an attempt to assault a white woman was protected from a mob who wanted to lynch him and he was tried white woman was protected from a mob who wanted to lynch him and he was tried in open court, convicted and sentenced to the peaitentiary for twenty-one years and was immediately safely transported to prison. All this is the result of a public meeting of citizens protesting against the spirit of mob law and pledging the sheriff their support in protecting prisoners and affording them a fair trial. The facts are these. Frank Weims, a negro, on May 19th attempted at 10 o'clock in the morning in a suburb of Chattanooga to assanlt a white woman. He was fought and frightened off and one hour afterwards was arrested and locked in the county jail. A mob was at once talked about and Sheriff Skillern as a precaution against the lawlessness sent the prisoner to Nashville for safe keeping. In Nashville a mob was organized and the jail visited. The prisoner was demanded but he was removed before the lynch party reached the jail and he was again cretly removed by the officers. By this time the whole state was aroused and no sheriff inmiddle or west Tennessee would sective the prisoner and be responsible for his safety. It became necessary to bring him back through Chattanooga and place him in jail in upper East Tennessee, the sheriff of Hamblen county, Morristown, Tenn., agreeing to accept him. A determined party of men from this city had congregated five miles out of the city to stop the train and lynch the negro. Accompanied by two officers the prisoner was taken off the train within a few miles of the mob and was taken on foot over the mountains and passed around this city, and about daylight was put on board an East Tennessee train and safely lodged in Morristown jail by noon.

light was put on board an East Tennessee train and safely lodged in Morristown jail by noon.

A few days after these exciting incidents a public meeting was held in the Chattanooga courthouse, a thousand or more prominent citizens attending, and resolutions were adopted protesting against mob law and all kinds of lawlessness, and pledgingtle sheriff aid in protecting prisoners and according them a fair trial. Today the criminal court convened and Judge Moon said the first case he would hear would be Frank Weims's rape case. The sheriff took the people who participated in the public meeting at their word, and summoned 100 of the leading citizens as a posse comitatus, and the novel sight was afforded this morning of these ordinarily peaceful men, for all promptly responded, with pistols and guns, accompanying a platoon of policemen conducting the prisoner out of the central depot down the principal street to the courthouse, followed by several thousand people. The courthouse and courtyard were kept cleared. The prisoner was brought before the bar, pleaded guilty and was given the full penalty of the law, twenty-one years at hard labor in the penitentiary.

Before the trial the husband of the woman whom the negro attempted to assault was arrested by the sheriff, and three pistols were taken from his person. The prisoner, after sentence was pronounced, was taken to jail and kept three hours, and then put aboard a Nashville train and accompanied by thirty armed men to the penitentiary, where he is tonight. Thus was the law vindicated in Chattanooga.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 13.—(Special.)-A sensational scene was enacted in Goode's fruit stand here this afternoon. Hon. T. L. Carty, a prominent attorney of the city, walked into the place, and seated in a chair was a stranger in the city. "Is your name Campbell?" asked the at-

"Yes," was the reply.

"You wrote an insulting letter to my sister, didn't you?"

No sooner had he said this than the irate attorney jumped toward the man and belabored him terribly with his hickory cane. labored him terribly with his hickory cane. He stopped only when his cane was smashed to splinters. Campbell's face looked like a map of Ireland after it was all over, but he was dead game just the same, and never cried quit, although practically whipped after the first blow. Campbell turned out to be S. S. Campbell, a car builder, who formerly resided in this hty, but has for some time past been a resident of Memphis. No arrests were made.

Rather an unusual scene occurred in front of The Herald office about 9 o'clock Friday morning. A lady driving a gray horse attached to a double-scated buggy stopped in front of the office and waited until the dummy arrived. in front of the office and waited rutil the dummy arrived. A rather pretty girl, wearing a red waist and black skirt, left the dummy and came over to where the lady was seated in the buggy. The two conversed in animated tones for a few minutes. Suddenly the woman stuck the girl with the buggy whip. Officer Hamby and Mr. J. D. Billings witnessed the occurrence and both expected lively times to follow. The girl stepped aside and the affair ended, for the time being at least. Mr. Billings thinks two blows were struck; the officer saw only one. The witnesses to the occurrence did not know either of the parties.

LURED TO DEATH

By the False Promises of an Unprincipled

Gadsden, Ala., June 13.—(Special.)—Evie Holcombe, a young white girl about twenty-two years old, died today from the effects of an overdose of morphine taken with sui-cidal intent. The family went to church Sunday night and on returning found Evie lying just inside the door insensible and frothing at the mouth. It was soon dis-covered that she had taken an overdose of poison and they went to work to save her life, but all efforts were in vain and she died this morning. No physician was called to attend her. The cause of her rash act was unrequited affection. Ben Powell, of the Gadsden Iron Company, had won her affections and ruined her.

Struck His Keeper. Philadelphia, Pa., June 13.—An Ifalian convict in the Eastern penitentiary, while taking exercise today, suddenly drew a knife and struck at one of the keepers. The blade struck the keeper's watch and glanced off. An old convict selzed the Italian, when the latter stabbed the old man in the abdomen, inflicting a fatal wound. The Italian then cut his own throat so effectually that he died in a few minutes.

DELIVERED TO A LARGE CONGREGATION

The Literary Address by Mr. Be nett J. Conyers of Atlanta.

THE PROGRESS OF THE UNIVERSITY.

The Fraternity Question Comes Up As The Agricultural Institutes Successful.

Athens, Ga., June 13.—(Special.)—University commencement is on in all of its glory, and those in attendance unite in pronouncing it one of the most successful commencements in the history of the university. The university has just completed tion of the entire state and of all who are interested in the cause of education. are interested in the cause of education. The amount of work done by the state's pride has been simply wonderful.

The curriculum has been steadily raised and is now the equal of any university in the south. The faculty has succeeded in getting more good, solid work out of the students than ever before. The boys have taken an increased interest in their studies, and all has worked most smoothly.

The moral tone of the students has be improved, the college Young Men's Christian Association has flourished as the palm tree, the Sabbath lectures by Chancellor Boggs have been full of zeal and religious interest, and the moral surroundings have een much better. been much better.

Several new chairs have been added. Professor McPherson, in the chair of history, and Messrs. Marion Hill and O. H. Sheffield and F. E. Callaway, as tutors, have done well. Professor J. B. Hunnicutt has filled with signal ability the chair of agriculture and his work in this department should be highly appreciated by the farm ers of the state. A healthier movement towards physical training has been made apparent dur the year and athletic sports and gymnasi exercises have received a full but not exe ive share of attention The military feature has progres

The Fraternity Question.

The much-vexed fraternity question habeen most amicably settled, to the satisfaction of all parties, and the literary societies, though not improved, have now beaplaced in a position by the board of truster where they will assuredly prosper.

In the matter of social festivities, the chancellor, with the co-operation of a boys, has succeeded in reducing the number of commencement dances to one, and the has settled a vexed question most happil. The university magazine has been a source of much improvement and advantages to the boys and The Pandora reflect great credit upon its editors.

The university has taken the lead in the movements that must necessarily attractions of the processor of the state.

The university has taken the remainder that movements that must necessarily attract the attention of the people of the state-three movements of vast interest to the cause of education in Georgia.

In the first part of the year, Professor H. C. White and J. B. In addition to the above we recovered a box of papers taken from Mr. J. H. Cooper valued at $5,000. We arrested two of the most notorious burglars that ever visited our city. The men have been industrious and have done good work during the month."

Chief Connolly then read his report for the month of May, showing the number of arrests made during the month and the amount of fines imposed by the recorder during the month.

The number of arrests during the month was 955, and the total amount of fines imposed by Recorder Calhoun during the month of May was $3,207.30. Mayor Hemphill asked Chief Connolly what was the number of arrests and the amount of fines for the month of May last year. Chief Connolly replied that 1,162 arrests had been made for the same month last year, and the fines received had been larger.

"But," he added, "we have a larger number of people in the stockade than we had last year—in fact as many as we ever had. The amount of fines remitted by the re-recorder is larger for May this year than for the same month last year."

Chairman English called the attention of the board to the deficiency in the appropriation made by the council for the police department for the current year.

He said it was $13,000 less than what was necessary to run the department as it is now being run. It is imperative that the amount be had.

Chairman English and Mayor Hemphill were appointed to go before the council at its next meeting and ask for the amount that was wanted.

Dr. Calloway will remain in Athens during commencement.

The Literary Address.

The address to the literary societies was delivered by Mr. Bennett J. Conyers, of Atlanta. The text upon which he spoke was "The Preservation of the Principles of the American Constitution."

The speech was listened to with close attention and was frequently applauded. The speaker showed a thorough acquaintance with constitutional law and expressed profound faith in the strength of its principles and the ability of the people to preserve them. Competent critics in the audience declared the speech to have been far above the average, giving promise that Mr. Conyers is equal to great achievements in the future.

She, in company with Miss Anna Holleman, of Augusta, Ga.; Miss Anna Bennett, Mrs. Jane Ware Martin and Miss Anna Tyler, of Columbus, Ga., just af':: Wilson's raid in 1865, went to the "emetery, placed flowers on the graves of their soldier friends who had died in the "Ladies' hospital." While near a mound containing six federal soldiers, Miss Lizzle said: "Ladies, I wish the laddes of Columbus would form a society to select and set apart one day of the year to do as the Germans I have just read of. On one of the saints' days they decorate their soldiers' graves. I will, as secretary, have to call the Soldiers' Aid Society together to decide what to do with the hospital property. I shall offer this resolution: "That we change the name of the Soldiers' Aid Society to the Ladies' Memorial Society of Columbus, Ga.; that we select a day and set apart one day of the year to pay tribute to the memory of the noble soldiers by decorating their graves with our prettlest flowers."

During Miss Lizzle's absence—called to Montgomery, Ala., by the illness of one of her family—the society met. To those whose knowledge of salad-vegetables is confined to lettuce and celery, I would say that the range is much more varied. There are endive, chicory, sorrel, dandelion leaf, mustard leaf, garden and water cresses, and there are tomatoes and cucumbers for slicing, and a flavor may be added to any or all by the use of the small and fine herbs that are in season, such as chervil mint, tarragon, pimpernel, chives, baim, etc. Or all these seasoning herbs may be combined and eaten as a salad by themselves. Indispensable Attentions to Lettnee pimpernel, chives, baim, etc. Or all these seasoning herbs may be combined and eaten as a salad by themselves.

Indispensable Attentions to Lettines.

To serve a fine head of lettinee with its tender, shell-like leaves dripping with water is a barbarism often perpetrated. In default of a spherical basket made of wire, in which you may place the leaves, and by swinging the basket shake the water out, put them, after a careful washing and picking, into a clean, coarse towel; gather up the ends loosely but securely and swing gently; get them as dry as possible, even if you have to absorb the moisture of each separately with a soft cloth.

It is easy to "crisp" lettuce, if one but knows how, and the difference is great in appearance and taste. Hold the head of lettuce by the root and dip it into a deep pan nearly full of very cold water; dip several times, then shake well and dry as directed; pick off the large outer leaves, discarding all not perfect, and leaving the heart intact; fold in a soft, light towel very loosely and set in the leebox until needed. Stale and wilted lettuce should no more be eaten than cold soup.

To dress a lettuce salad, certain ingredients and certain conditions are absolutely essential to have it good. First arrange the leaves carelessly in a salad bowl, large enough to admit of turning them over and about; on top lay a handful of seasoning herbs. In purchasing a salad fork and apoon, I trust you have not permitted yourself to be begulled by artistic inventions in silver, but that you have invested in the simplest procurable wood, without carving.

For dressing, the ordinary vinegar of commerce cannot be depended on; it is usually too strong. The very best acid to take its place is the julce of lemons. White wine vinegar comes next. But lemon juice is the most simple and delicate acid nature provides to dress her green leafage in salad.

Do not purchase a ready-ground pepper at the grocer's. Grind your own peppercornsthe white tellicherry is best—in a plain little wooden mill that you t

It Takes Two to Make a Mayonnaise.

Chicken salad is not perfect without a mayonnaise dressing, neither is lobster, nor, in fact, any of the heavier salads. Tomatoes are delicious when sliced, after having been on in some time, with a mayonnaise, but as a rule this rich sauce should be reserved for fish and meat salads. A distinction should be made between green leaf salad and those containing meats: the former need only oil and acid, while the latter may have a thick, strong, spiced dressing.

There are reasons why so few amateurs succeed with a mayonnaise; they will not use enough oilve oil, or they pour it too rapidly on the egg.

enough olive oil, or they pour it too rapidly on the egg.

Arrange if you can to have some one who is not hurried pour the oil—or rather drop it—directly as you stir. But if you have to do it yourself, sit down and arrange a rest for your arm and the bottle, in order that you may drop the fluid steadily and slowly with the left hand while the right stirs with a regular rotary motion, never ceasing for a moment, and always in the same direction. The eggs should be fresh and cold and the yolks freed from every particle of germ and white. Stir the egg for a minute before beginning to add the oil. Then begin and continue, a drop at the time; after using about a gill put in a tiny pinch of salt, a spat of mustard and a few drops of lemon juice—one at a time, with the left hand, stirring smoothly and without cessation with the right.

When through you must taste and add seavers the salt in the state and and seavers a supplementation of the salt in the salt and a seavers of the salt way to the salt and a seavers of the salt way the salt and a salt way the salt of the salt way the salt and a salt way the salt way cessation with the right.

When through you must taste and add seasonings of lemon, as you think best. Authorities who profess to know what they are talking about differ as to the use of dry or made mustard; as my aim in writing is to make my instruction entirely practical to those who read I only tell what I have learned from actual experiments. I have found it the best to use mixed mustard—that which has been first silective most content.

learned from actual experiments. I have found it the best to use mixed mustard—that which has been first slightly moistened and rubbed smooth with a little acid and then sufficient acid added to make it the consistency of a thick, smooth custard. Added thus to the mayonnaise it is far less likely to curdle it. If by ill luck such a calamity overtakes you set aside the bowl, begin with a fresh egg and oil, in a clean dish, and add the curdled sauce by degrees to the new—it will come out all right.

This mayonnaise may be made into a red sauce by the addition of the pounded coral of a lobster, and should be in this form to complete the serving of a lobster salad.

You sometimes see salad receipts calling for tarragon vinegar. To make this, simply put a branch of tarragon in a wide-mouthed glass jar, fill the jar with vinegar and let it soak; it is preferable to using the tarragon itself in dressing salads.

The Latin Touch. The Latin Touch.

The Latin Touch.

An addition made by gotrmands, which finds favor with all the Latin races, is the touch of garlic, imparted in the most delicate imaginable way. Cut a small crust of bread about an inch square and rub the pungent garlic all over it, then put this crust, called a chapon, into the bowl and in tossing and turning the leaves, each receives its slight aromatic fiavor. Sydney Smith, in his celebrated recipe for a perfect salad, says:

"Let onlon atoms lurk within the bowl, And, scarce suspected, animate the whole." That same bon vivant also recommends a magic spoonful of anchovy sauce.

Water cress, endives, chicory, corn salad, dandellon salads are prepared as directed for lettuce.

Water cress, endives, chicory, corn salad, dandellon salads are prepared as directed for lettuce.

Asparagus tips, string beans, cauliflower, Jerusalem artichokes and okra are boiled, cooled thoroughly, carefully cut, and dressed with French dressing.

A delicious early spring salad is of equal-quantities of cress, pepper-grass and chervil, well bicked and washed, drained and dressed exactly as lettuce. These grasses can all be grown under glass.

Some scald tomatoes before slicing; this is wrong; it ruins the color and destroys the quality. Peel the pretty crimson "love apples" with a sharp knife, even if it does take more time and trouble. Set them on the ice until very cold, then slice quite thick, and pour the dressing over, leaving out one tablespoonful of oil and adding more vinegar; tarragon is an improvement.

Cold potato salad is often an abomination Freshly boiled potatoes, cooled partially should be sliced into the salad bowl, seasoned with French dressing and eaten a little warm it should be garnished abundantly with finely chopped herbs.

DEATH OF MRS. R. G. WILSON. She Passes Away Peacefully at Her Hom Last Night.

Mrs. R. G. Wilson, wife of Patrolman Wilson, of the police force, died at her residence last night on Magnolia street at half-past 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Wilson was a lady of many beautiful traits of character, and was highly estecemed by all who knew her. For a long time before her death she was a great invalid, but she endured her sufferings patiently and with a Christian resignation until the end came last night, when she quietly passed away.

The interment will be at Forest station, from which place the funeral will occur tomorrow morning.

A Queer Old Couple.

Macon, Ga., June 13.—(Special.)—An interesting story is told in The East Macon Truth of an old couple named Pat and Nancy Sweeney, who live near Cross Keys. The Truth says that the couple are seemingly in abject poverty, that they live on the proceeds of a small garden and that their surroundings all indicate that their struggle for life is a hard one, while in reality they are worth no less than twenty thousand dollars.

Carl G. Thomsen, a musician from dreamy Switzerland, has hung up his tune-ful lyre for the present and is abiding at the police station.

And there the artist can be seen today by those who have known him not of a large number of ladies residing on the south side.

"The ladies," said Detective Green, "whom he had swindled just rose up en masse and demanded Thomsen's arrest. They are extremely indignant and will vigorously prosecute the case."

When Thomsen was arrested he was found at a house on Fair street, where he was being roundly excoriated by two of his lady victims.

Thomsen has been in the city for several months and his dealings have been almost exclusively with ladies.

Carrying with him a few sheets of music written by himself and representing himself as the teacher of a new method of music, which was much more easily learned than the old way, he went about from house to house soliciting students.

the old way, he went about from house to house soliciting students.

His dreamy look and his plausible talk always aided him in creating a favorable impression and securing students where he run upon families musically inclined.

He was very successful in getting students and from nearly all he collected his salary, or a part of it, at least, in advance, it is said.

After securing his pay it is charged that the music teacher always made himself scarce, and he paid no more visits to his students. In this way it is said that he has obtained money from a great many families, but continued his operations.

He knew that the ladies whom he had been dealing with would rather lose the amounts of money which they had let him have than bring the matter into the courts.

It seems that the musician was right in this. He was allowed to continue his practices without molestation.

this. He was allowed to continue his practices without molestation.

A few days ago a number of ladies living near the vicinity of the corner of Fair street and Capitol avenue met and began to compare notes. From talking together the fact was developed that each of the ladies was a loser from having been taken in by the sharp music teacher.

They became highly indiguant at the man's audacious practices and resolved to report the matter to the detectives.

This they did and yesterday morning Chief of Detectives Wright detailed Detive Joe Green to work upon the case.

the Joe Green to work upon the case.

The detective was not long in locating his man and he arrested him and brought him to the police station.

A charge of cheating and swindling was booked against the musician and he was given a cell.

present company members of the spalding Greys represent the name they ber, a company which fought as nobly as my wearing the gray during the late war. The company was organized just after pristmas in 1860, Colonel L. T. Doyal bing the first commander. The thing post prompting the organization being the surrection of Harper's Ferry but a few days before Christmas. War being de-dared, the company was ordered to report for duty in northern Virginia, and on April 19th of the same year the company, com-prising eighty-four men, left Griffin for front. They were assigned with the ond Georgia. Out of the eighty-four men who went out with the company only eleven of them reached home after the surrender. At Gettysburg they were completely cut to pieces, only three of their number surviving with no wounds. Sergeant H. B. Fentral, who joined the command two days before the fight of the Wilderness , and followed its colors from then till the close of the war, never received a scratch. He has been a member of the company during all these years. He performs every duty that comes to hand, and when seen this morning was getting the company streets in condition for the incoming troops of tomorrow. In their armory they have a battle-tattered flag, presented to the company by Miss Mattle Neely, now Mrs. Smith, of the Nelms hoely, now help of the Griffin Female college. The flag shows from the numerous Wilderness ,and followed its colors from bouse, in behalf of the Griffin Female college. The flag shows from the numerous bullet holes it has in it, and the blood stains on it that it was in the hottest of the battle. The company has the youngest orderly in the state in Oliver Slaton, and yet he certainly ranks among the most efficient. He understands thoroughly military duty, and is a strict disciplinarian.

The Health of the Camps

Through the courtesy of Camp Surgeon or. Gervinner The Constitution learned oudition of the health of the troops while here.

Only twenty-seven cases were treated during the week. The principal trouble with them being diarrhoea and intermittent fever, which were only slight in effect. Ninety-eight prescriptions is the sum total filled, which is a good showing. A great majority of the men are returning to their homes in much better health than when they arrived in camp.

The mean maximum temperature of the weather for the week has been $5.4.7; the mean minimum, 68 1-7; the mean range has been 17.3.4. The atmosphere has been dry. Dr. Gervinner is greatly pleased with the camp.

their praise of the treatment accorded them by our citizens.

Not an officer in camp has uttered a word of disapproval of the encampment site, but on the contrary all express themselves as well pleased.

There's no telling the good a week in camp does a company when they get the benefit of battalion and regimental drilling. Only a few towns in the state have companies enough to form a battalion, and for this reason the majority of companies never get this needful practice until encampment get this needful practice until encampment

To Tax Payers

FULTON COUNTY.

On July 1st, 1892, the time for giving in State and County Taxes will expire. The Tax Receiver will not have the right, as heretofore, to extend the time. The law allows only thirty days to pass upon the tax returns. We are compelled, under the law, to assess and double tax all who have not given in or returnply with the law, save trouble for us and money for themselves. We would be glad to favor all but have absolutely no discretion in the matter. The cretion in the matter. The law requires us to close our work in thirty days and our time will be out on July 1st, 1892.

ATLANTA, GA., June 14, 1892.

Harrison Handleapped The rejection of Blaine at Minneapolis mocks him out of public life, but he will take his place in history as the popular idol of the republicans—the most brilliant and magnetic of all their leaders.

Harrison won the nomination, but how did he get it? Practically by purchase. The president through his confidential managers raked and scraped the official sewers for a crowd of henchmen who would secure his renomination. His kins-For and other office holders massed them elves at Minneapolis, and, regardless of the popular will, they did their work.

Never has a republican president forced himself upon his party by such a selfish, personal and corrupt use of the vast patronage at his disposal.

A renomination thus wrung by the ma chine from an unwilling party cannot fail to handicap the man who would profit by it. No matter what may be said about Blaine's failure, it is only a surmise that he sought the nomination. The facts of the case show that he never retracted his February withdrawal from the race. It is quite likely that the use of his name at Minneapolis was due to come of his too zealous friends and the anti-Harrison men. Certainly there is nothing to indicate that Mr. Blaine stooped to any methods at all comparable to Harrison's.

The rejection of Blaine, as The New York World well says, points to the decay of the republican party, for what else can be said of a party dominated by a man like Harrison? We have said that the president is handicapped. The resentment caused by his shameful triumph, and the popular indignation excited by his indirect purchase of the renomination must necessarily injure him with the

And why should Benjamin Harrison have a second term? What has he done since he entered the white house? He stood by the force bill, and, after its repudiation by his party, he now seeks to revive it. His blundering came very near involving us in several wars. His adminshows only here and there a gleam of light-all borrowed from Blaine. If the McKinley tariff is somewhat toned down by the reciprocity feature, it is due to Blaine. If we escaped unnecessary tilities with other nations, the credi belongs to Blaine. This is the record, and again we say that it handicaps Harrison. Thousands of republican voters in every northern state will refuse to cast their votes for the man whose machine methods thrust aside for his own advantage the greatest statesman ever known in the annals of

The Blaine Flasco.

There is a curious story current in Washington that the supposed inovement in favor of Blaine was engineered by Mr. Harrison himself who took this method of forcing the Maine statesman out of the cabinet. Curious as the story is, it holds exether very well. It not only preserves the unities, so to speak, but it explains many things that are dark and mysterious to the original Blaine men as well as to

Mr. Blaine wrote the Clarkson letter and was thought to be out of the race. Suddenly, after the delegates had been selected and Mr. Harrison had the game in his own hands, leading politicians who have heretofore been unfriendly to Mr. Blaine such men as Platt, Quay and Clarkson-began to beat on their tinpans and declare that the republican party demanded the nomination of the secretary of state, and that, in response to that demand, he would accept the place, and was, therefore, in that sense, a candidate.

While this racket was going on, Mr. Blaine said nothing. The Clarkson letter was on file, and he could point to that and shake his head, or he could wink one eye and put his finger on his lip and may nothing. There is no record of what he really did do, but the anxious reporters, sitting on the door steps and searching in the scrap-barrel, found a great any evidences that the Maine statesman was a candidate. Platt, Quay and Clarkson-a lovely trio-went about with their calithumpian attachment declaring that the nomination of Mr. Blaine would not be postponed on account of the weather. In the west, Foraker opened wide his matchless mouth and sounded the alarm, and the entire republican party reemed to rush to the Blaine camp.

Meanwhile, the little politician at the white house rubbed his fat stomach, nghed behind his beard, and smacked his lips full savorily. He felt that the time had come for him to act. Mr. Blaine had written the Clarkson letter, and now here he was, according to all appearances and the testimony of those who pretended to to represent his interests, a full-fledged candidate. Mr. Harrison could not accuse his secretary of bad faith, but he made him feel that the administration thought he was acting in bad faith. As soon as Mr. Blaine discovered this state of affairs he tendered his resignation which was accepted with a curt promptness that wed the unfriendly feeling at the bot-en a thorn in the side of Mr. Harrison from the moment he entered the cabinet. He overtopped and outshone th whole crowd. He had the prestige and the popularity. From the first, he has been a bigger man than the president. He had the nerve to denounce the McKinley bill, and to declare that it did not open a single new market to the products of the American farm. He clipped it with the reciprocity feature, which, although it is a sham and a traud, is regarded by the republican party with admiration and applause. Our readers cannot have falled to observe the squirming of Mr. Harrison in the shadow of Mr. Blaine's popularity. He has snubbed his secretary of state in every possible way and has tried to belittle his diplomatic efforts; but all to no purpose. Mr. Blaine's influence and power have overshadowed the Harrisons frem the first.

We have no doubt that there is a feeling of relief at the white house. Mr. Blaine is no longer in the way. For a little while Mr. Harrison will be the big man himself until the country discovers for itself what a small man he really is Yet we are not trying to belittle Mr. Harrison as a politician. He belongs to the cross-roads variety. He is as sharp as a steel trap, and he will be a strong candidate. The democrats will make a serious mistake if they imagine that he is weak because he is narrow-minded. There is not a shrewder political nemager in the republican party.

The progress of the south since Appomattox has no parallel outside of romance In 1865 we had no money, no credit, no hope. Many of our cities were m ashes, our plantations were wrecked, and our railways were worn out.

Today we have a land of peace and plenty, 43,000 miles of railway, and our iverage percentage of increase of per capita wealth for the decade ending in 1890 was 100 per cent more than that of New England or the central west

We are drawing capital and we are making capital.

Ten years ago we had 220 national banks; now we have 590.

The percentage of the increase of our foreign exports is about five times the combined gain at the other parts of the

A few days ago we showed by rellable statistics that we have fewer failures, with smaller liabilities in the south than in other sections. We showed, too, that in development and production our progress had been phenomenal, and that the growth of our diversified manufactures made a total during the past five years of over 17,000 new industries. Now, take this fact-since 1888 our ssessed property has increased $1,600,-600,000 in value, according to the reports for 1890! When a section can accomplish so much the rising south is now in a position to hold her own, and seize her share of fortune's gifts.

Referring to the desperate efforts of the republican convention to straddle the silver question, The Richmond Dispatch suggests that the democratic convention ought to avoid that sort of a muddle, and we heartily second that suggestion. If the party proposes to ignore the demands cater to the alleged views of voters in the east let that fact be clearly understood. If a candidate who is opposed to the free coinage of silver is to be nominated, let the fact be clearly understood. If the convention is for free coinage, let it so state in unmistakable terms. If the silver question is to be ignored or postponed, let the fact plainly appear.

In short, we know of no reason why the democratic party in the year of fate, 1892, should resort to double dealing in regard to free coinage or any other question. believe that any attempt to deceive the ole by a straddling and unintelligible declaration will people than drive away more voters it will invite. The republicans are first in the field with their bypocritical

straddle: let them occupy it. The Constitution has very decided opinions as to what would be the best policy of the party in respect to the silver question: but its oninions on that and on other questions are subject to the action of the democratic convention. We can at least advise the brethren not to engage in a poor attempt to compete with the republicans in the straddle business. It will deceive nobody, not even the humblest voter in the land.

Whatever disposition the democratic leaders conclude to make of the silver issue they should proceed boldly and une quivocally.

The Cotton Outlook.

The Financial Chronicle of Saturday has an extended riview of the cottor acreage, stand and condition, up to date, and its conclusions, because of the care used in considering all the circumstances. will command the confidence of operators and cannot be without its effect in molding the public opinion which makes the market.

At the outset The Chronicle makes the assertion that "acreage figures in recent years have no doubt been somewhat larger than any authority has estimated them." Considerable pains are taken to show that this is true—an undertaking somewhat difficult in the absence of estimates other and more reliable than those which have been given to the public in the past, but one which nevertheless appears to have the truth behind it: for as The Chronicle editor says, nature raise the estimate when the crop came to be counted. "The criticism is simply a protest which nature makes, and consequently cannot be discredited." While the acreage estimate of the agricultural bureau for the last three years has been respectively 19,500,000, 20,000,000, 19,500,000 acres, the actual yield has been 7,313,726, 8,655,518 and 9,000,000 bales. 'The Chronicle maintains with reason that the yield per acre has not progressively increased from 174 pounds in 1889 to 204 in 1890 and 215 in 1891. Therefore it c that acreage estimates have been too small, and, in the effort to correct former mistakes, that journal has multiplied its correspondents throughout the south, hoping to get reports whose average will be nearer the fact.

Upon these more numerous reports, it makes the review of the cotton acreage and stand for 1892, and comes to a conclusion that the acreage is reduced 11 8 per cent below that of last year, and that taking the plant of 1891 to have been 20,779,205 acres, that of 1892 & 18,310,-414. This estimate for the whole acreage is based upon estimates for the state as follows:

In reaching this conclusion The Chronicle does not attain anything like mathe matical certainty. On the contrary it refers to "general conditions which have been instrumental in compelling a radical contraction in the acres planted. Those conditions do not need to be restated, for they are so well known and so widely acknowledged. But the attempt to acquaint one's self with and express by percentages exact deductions ic a very different affair. There is scarcely a county in the south from which any industrious inquirer will not obtain very dissimilar if not contradictory reports.'

Judging by the estimates for Georgia, The Chronicle's idea of the decrease in acreage is a conservative one. In this state the crop was in the ground by the first of May, and at that time the commissioner of agriculture, upon reports from 1,000 correspondents, estimat ed the decrease of acreage in Georgia at 20 per cent. The United States weather bureau, which furnishes the figures for the agricultural department, estimates, upon reports from 300 correspondents in Georgia, that the cotton acreage has decreased 12 to 15 per cent. If we strike an average between the state commissioner's estimate, and that of the United States weather bureau for Georgia, we have a compromise estimate of 17 per cent decrease: so we see that The Chronicle's estimate, so far as Georgia is concerned, is about a third lower than the estimate from two official bureaus which cover the state very thoroughly. As evidence of the accuracy of the state report, based on answers from local correspondents, it may be mentioned that this was tested in the case of fertilizers by the anay report, where the number of tags issued was found to correspond almost exactly with the number of tons reported soid. So, on the whole, there are strong indications that the state agricultural department's estimate of 20 per cent decrease in the acreage is nearer the truth than The Chronicle's estimate of 8 per cent. Judging from what is in sight then, the general estimate of that journal is under 1ather than over the correct figures.

The large decrease in the sales of fertilizers suggests the question, will the yield be as low in proportion as the acre age? In several states east of the Missis sippi the falling off in fertilizer sales is reported as great as 50 per cent, and in all it is considerable. The Chronicle information is that this deficit of plant food is only in part supplied by the use of home-made composts and manures The condition of the plant does not appear at this time to differ very greatly from an average, but in many cases the crop has not been planted more than five weeks, and the plant is just beginning to make a show. In the face of all the facts, no one has the temerity to dispute the general proposition that the growing crop will be smaller than that of last year, and the question is only one of the amount of shortage, which all admit will be very large. A feature of The Chronicle's review which is worthy of special attention is the statement that the increase in last year's cotton crop was largely from those sections which were inundated the year before. That is to say, the Mississippi in a measure performs the office of the Nile in fertilizing the lowlands with its periodical overflow, which if it blights the prospect of the year, increases the product of another. This is of especial interest now, while the recent overflow m the Mississippi valley is fresh in the public mind, and it may be well to stick a pin in the map along the flood line and leave it there till next year.

The Gambling Speculator. A business man in New York has recently told the story of his bucket shop experience, and, as the speculative gambling he describes differs from the options of the big stock exchanges only in degree, it will be of interest, while the

Hatch bill is pending, to present some of the facts stated in his narrative. This New Yorker started out two years ago to beat the bucket shops. He saw men with their thousands on the stock exchange make money, and he thought that he could succeed with his hundreds in the bucket shops. He started out with a good business, and wound up with no business and no money. The young speculator studied the quotations of the stock exchange, and made his first venture in a small way. He pocketed $10 profit, and then bought more stock. This time his margin was wiped out. He learned that he could protect his stock with a remargin. So he tried that precaution, and often made money, but in the long run he lost more. He found himself paying less attention to his business. His speculations absorbed his thoughts. New schemes for beating the bucket shop occupied his mind, and his losses continued. Of this period in his life he says:

I could not afford to lose so much money and my business was suffering because of my absence and loss of interest in it. I felt that I ought to quit speculating at once, but I still believed that my experience would tell in the east and the losses be made good. Then I began to think and talk of luck. I noticed how pins law on the sidewalk and picked up, these pins lay on the sidewalk and picked up those with the point toward me; that meant good luck. If the first white horse I saw in the morning as I came down town was going toward the ferry it was my lucky day. A black cat at my door or showing friendliness black cat at my door or showing friendliness for me would bring good luck. If anything had impressed me on a day when I made money, it was forever afterward in my mind

It has been a losing game right the was on the right side of the market v was on the right side of the market when the bull movement set in two months ago, but all I gained then, and more besides, soon found its way to the bucket shop's bank account. I am now convinced, when too late, that I cannot beat this game, although it seems so easy a thing to do, I can neither buy nor sell stocks now because I have no money, and I would not if I could.

In conclusion the writer declares that the small bucket shop speculator never is under a spell-a curse-and when he finally collapses he rarely ever pulls himself together and gets on his feet again. Nine times out of ten he becomes an utter wreck or commits suicide.

Here we have an everyday story, and after reading it the thoughtful citizen will wonder why the reformers who take such an active interest in suppressing lotteries and ordinary gambling houses are apparently unwilling to interfere with this most destructive evil of American business life.

The endorsement was as hearty as it was sincere, and these two young men go before the people with the seal of approval from an or-ganization which represents the democracy of the county. This, it seems, is admitted by both of my opponents, and being unable to find any weak spot here, they are seeking to warp and pervert my appeal to the farmers for a reduction in the cost of making, as well as the acreage, of cotton. I have never said that Georgians can and do raise cotton at 31-2 cents per pound, and any man, to be convinced of the falsity of this charge, needs only to refer to my published interview and letters. In these I distinctly state that the price of cotton is far below the figures which under the present system represent the cost under the present system represent the cost of production,' and any effort to pervert this language is simply a campaign dodge to catch votes."

honest and able Christian gentlemen in pub-lic life, discusses the Harrison administra-tion in The North American Review for June. As a matter of course it is impossible to allude to the political events of the past four years without referring to that mon-strous legislative iniquity, the McKinley tariff, which is, both morally and economically, a blot upon the American name. It is an im-peachment of our intelligence and integrity. Every clause of it is darkened by selfishness and dishonesty. It sought to reduce the evenue by raising duties which foster trusts

Senator Colquitt shows that even in its reciprocity features, which are an acknowledged concession to free trade, favoritism manufactured goods, which are to displace so much of our agricultural products. At least 75 per cent of our exports go to Europe, while not 5 per cent go to South America. Over 50 per cent find a market in Great Britain, chiefly products of agriculture. The secret of the success of Atlanta as also of all other cities that have grown to any size or importance has been in the enterprising spirit, the harmonious efforts and the determined will of its citizens, and the liberal manuer in which they have sustained and built up their public journals, and the encouragement and aid they give to any one engaged in any laudable occupation within their borders. Atlanta is certainly one of the foremost cities of the south, and she has built herself up by building up those who have appealed to her for patronage and sustenance by casting their lots at her disposal. No town or city can prosper or enlarge itself without encouraging all industries that come within its limits. To encourage industry by patronizing it is to build up your town upon a basis of morality, virtue and honesty, and to develop its resources by bringing out the capacities that seek an outlet through you. To refuse encouragement to the laborer cripples the interests of your town and kills its progress. The right kind of patronage acts with a reflex value and builds up the builder. of all other cities that have grown to any size or importance has been in the enterprising

THE BOND SALE.

In an item of local gossip in yesterday's on a prominent banker, whose name mentioned, criticised the last sale of was not mentioned, criticised the last sale of Georgia bonds as being a disadvantageous one, and in concluding his comment he is quoted as having said: "It is hard to con-vince some of us that there was not something wrong in the sale.'

thing wrong in the sale."

This last comment did not intend to convey the idea that there was any improper deal involved in the transaction, and the banker referred to says in this connection:

"I would not for the world have conveyed any such impression. I am satisfied, of course, that with such honorable men as Governor Northen and Treasurer Hardeman, everything was done for the best interest of the state. But I simply gave my opinion as a business man that the bonds did not bring their worth. What I meant by the remark that there was something wrong, was that the sale was not a good one, and I simply gave that opinion for what it was worth."

This brings up a question which has been

This brings up a question which has been discussed before in these columns, both pre-and con—"Was the last sale of the bonds of and con—"was the last sale of the bonds of the state a good one?"

As good a judge as can be found to ex-press an opinion on this subject is the dis-tinguished treasurer of the state of Georgia, Colonel Robert U. Hardeman, who for many years has managed in a masterly manner the years has managed in a masterly manner the state's treasury department. It was Colonel Hardeman who, as the right hand bower of Governor McDanlel, assisted that eminent executive in one of the best sales of Georgia bonds ever made. Likewise under Governor Gordon's administration it was Treasurer Hardeman whose ability as a financier, and whose excellent management of the colonial colonia whose excellent management of the state's finances, succeeded in making such a splendie showing for the state's books during those four years. He has earned for himself the distinction of being one of the best treasurers. Georgia ever had, and it is with the backing of this record that he gives his opinion of the recent sale of Georgia bonds. A Constitution representative asked Colone Hardeman yesterday his opinion of the sale and with his usual affable responsiveness, the head of Georgia's treasury departm the whole story of the sale of the the following statement: "The act of 1891," said he, "an

On Mare 11th an advertisement was prepared missing executive order and sent to The New York World and Herald, The Philadha Ledger. The Reston Herald, The Philadha Ledger. Ledger, The Boston Herald, The I Sun, The Chicago Herald, The C Enquirer and to every daily paper in asking for bids. This advertisement of our law stated that the interest on mid bonds should not exceed 4 1-2 per cent bu bids were invited for the entire series bearing a lower rate of interest on April 4th bids were opened by me in presence governor. There were three bids—on governor. There were three bids—one from J. E. Granniss, of New York, bidding for a 4 1-2 per cent bond—at par and 5-16 premium; one from G. Gunby Jordan, president Third National bank, of Columbus, bidding for a 4 1-2 per cent bond par and 1 1-16 premium, and one from Hayes & Son. bidding for a 31-2 per cent bond with a bonus of $50, for the entire issue, with this proviso—This bid is made only with the condition and proviso—that the state of Georgia has not made default on any bonds or interest on any issue within the past ten years, and in other event this bid is to be considered not made."

"Under the direction of the governor and myself," continued Colonel Hardeman, "the attorney general prepared the following telegram, which was sent to Messra. Hayes & Son, of New York: Your bid for state books is not made in accordance with the advertisement.

Do you desire to ever will be considered. Po y annul your bid so as to meet the above stated? If so, wire that fact today, otherwise the bid filed by you will not further be entertained.' In answer thereto the answer came, 'Cannot remove conditions.' After a thorough canvass of the motive prompting the bid for a 3 1-2 per cent bond, and the further fact that the bonds had been advertised, I advised the governor to accept the highest bona, fide bid—viz., that of Mr. Jordan, for a 41-2 per cent bond at par, 1 1-16 premium. am, and have always been, ready to assume any responsibility for my doings in this office, and none more readily than in assuming the responsibility for the sale of this last issued and in saying this it is not in a spirit of finding fault with those who was a price of the control of the co fault with those who may now criticise my action, but with the conscionness of having the facts connected with the sale all in my favor as an officer protecting the credit of the state. "When Governor McDaniel and myself sold "When Governor McDaulal and myself sold the first issue of 4 1-2 per cent bonds, we advertised for a 5 per cent bond. For this entire issue, as an issue, but one bid was received, for a 4 1-2 per cent bond. A severs fight was made on the purchaser to break him down, but as a man and an able thancier without the aid of Clews; he carried out his contract with the state to the letter and the law. Understand me, I would not detract say thing from Governor McDanlel's administration, for, as he is a man among men, so was he governor among governors, of whom all the courts to be presult but the fact to Georgia ought to be proud; but the fact remains that there was no effort made upon the part of the purchasers of those bonds at any time to do the state an injustice or was The entire correspondence went through my office, and I am conversant with all the facts.

"Now as to sale of this last issue. I me confident the best thing was done for the sist that could have been done under the conditions surrounding the sale. The bonds had been duly and thoroughly advertised. A bid had been offered for a very low rate of interest-bearing bond, but made eridently with the intention of getting the state into the courts upon the question to be sprung at the the intention of getting the state into the courts upon the question to be spring at the date of delivery, as to the state being in default. This, neither the governor nor myself, was allowed to do. The constitution of the state provides that the governor, or any state official, shall not enter into any contract or agreement whereby the state shall be made a party to any suit in any court of this of the United States, to test the validity of her actions declaring certain bonds or obligaactions declaring certain bonds or obliga-tions invalid. To have readvertised the bonds what would have been the inevitable—we would have been met on every side with the circulars of the enemies of the state—To are in default, else why did you not accept the bid of Hayes & Son, which was a martificent in the state—the stat

the bid of Hayes & Son, which was a mag-nificent bid for an exceedingly low rate of be-terest-bearing bond?

"To have attempted to sell by private sale, after the bid, we would have been confronted with the same proposition. Consequents, having canvassed the whole matter with the governor I advised the acceptance of the highest bidder.

"But in addition to this view of the question influencing my action I affirm that it is the highest sale of bonds ever made in Georgia, comparing the sale of this series, bearing

The melons are small on account of the mg dry spell, but the prices are good. The buyers are paying from $100 to $150 a carload on the side track at the shipping point, and the planters will make money this year. The name of the negro is John Satterwhite, and he is charged with having a hand in the murder of Houseworth at Nickajack creek a few days ago.

He is a tall, foppish-looking negro, as black as the ace of spades and with a bad eye that puts the observer on his guard. He is shrewd, however, and wary, and instead of betaking himself to the woods and hiding among the bushes, he has spent the greater part of his time in the city, dodging about from post to pillar.

Balliff Shields, however, has been on the lookout for Satjerwhite for some time, and in a quiet way he has been peeping into barrooms and keeping his eye on the dark alleys around the city.

Yesterday he met the man he was looking for, and caught him going out of a rear door on Pryor street as he was entering the front. A policeman was called in by the bailiff to assist in the game, and in a few minutes the artful dodger was occupying a seat in the sheriff's office.

He protested his innocence, and denied any knowledge whatever in regard to the killing, but there was enough in his looks to satisfy the sheriff, and he was carried to jail to await his trial.

That's the way the congressional horses stand in the fifth district now.

But the race track may be thick with them at any minute now, so general is the them at any minute now, so general is the talk over the district.

"Oh, yes, I'm in it to stay," said Judge Hillyer yesterday, "and I am already actively engaged in campaigning. I am not taking off my coat and making it my business and nothing else, but at the same time I am not going to allow any grass to grow under my feet. None."

"Will there be any other candidates to announce in the near future?" somebody asked.

"No, I think not. I don't think anybody announce in the near future?" somebody asked.

"No, I think not. I don't think anybody else will announce from Atlanta at least. I am pretty certain there will not be."

But what has become of Colonel Albert Cox and the others is a question that still comes up. Everybody knows a great appeal has been made to get Colonel Cox in the race, and everybody knows that Colonel Cox has been thinking the matter over. In fact, he has said that he will run if there is no squabble over it here in his own county. He may take chances of the squabble, yet who knows but this is probable?

Then there is Colonel Hulsey. It is generally known that he has been thinking this matter of running for congress over for some time, and is still on the bordering edge of the campaign; and Colonel Joe James.

Charge of Contempt.

Mrs. Ella A. Crawford a few months ago filed a petition in the clerk's office praying for a total divorce from her husband, Mr. J. J. Crawford.

Pending the trial of the case she was granted temporary alimony, and her husband was directed by the court to pay her the stipulated sum of $20 each month. He failed, however, to obey the court's order, and another petition was filed yesterday morning by Mrs. Crawford, stating that her husband owed her $90, and asking for an order that he be made to come into court and show cause why he should not be found guilty of contempt.

The case was set for a hearing June 18th, and Mr. Crawford will be required to make an explanation at that time. He was found by the sheriff yesterday without difficulty, and will be in attendance when the case is called. We Will Say with Lay Brother Peli can, "We Needed That Badly." MANAGER MACCOLLIN.

In the cast, a good many of the comic opera favorites are found. Like the stars of the company, they are indefatigable workers, and always please an audience, be it ever so critical and exacting. They are: Mr. J. Lisle Apple, tenor; Mr. H. Burrows, baritone; Mr. Harry W. Leonard, second comedian; Mr. Frank Pearson, bass, and several others.

Yesterday the company held two very successful rehearsals of "Falka," which will be the opening bill.

A specially attractive feature will be added to the Edgewood Avenue theater during the hot summer months, that of a refreshment pavilion, which adjoins the theater proper. During the intermissions, all of the latest and most popular temperance drinks will be elegantly served. This resort will be known as "Between the Acts," and, no doubt, will be largely patronized by the theatergoers.

THE NEW YORK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

NEW YORK, June 13.-The stock market ed decided activity, while strength was shown especially in foreign favorites, which was very pronounced, resulting in material improvement in values all over the list. The general list today opened fractionally higher all along the line, but could not keep pace with the leaders, either as regards activity or with the leaders, either as regards activity or extent of improvement in prices, but everything shared in the improvement, with only two exceptions. Buying today was specially good in St. Paul, Louisville, New Albany and Chicago and Wheeling and Lake Erie, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Western Union. The advance in Missouri Pacific in the early dealings was especially notable, while its final gain was even larger than that of either St. Paul, Burlington, Rock Island or Lake Shore. The rest of the market moved within comparatively small limits, and a decline in values, coupled with free realizations of profits on a sharp advance made, caused serious concessions from best prices in many stocks, while the drop in New England was accelerated at the time. The other weak point in the list was Tennessee Coal, which fell away 2 per cent, while New England lost nearly 5 per cent at the lowest price, railying only fractionally. Final dealings under pressure brought to bear developed considerable weakness, and the market closed on a decline rather weak, but still generally fractionally higher than on Saturday. Missourl Pacific, however, rose 2, Lake Shore 17-8, Burlington 13-4, Cordage and Rock Island each 11-4, St. Paul 11-8, Distillers 1 per cent, while New England lost 33-4 per cent. Rales, listed stocks, 390,000 shares; unlisted, 11,000 extent of improvement in prices, but every-scarum to cover at any cost. The orders were given to the brokers to buy without regard to price, and this made a buoyant market such as Wall street has not witnessed in years. Besides Keene and Cammack covering up, the smaller traders also ran, and it was a veritable bear panic all during the forenoon. St. Paul at first lead the pace, but the other Grangers all came up in quick order, and it is not exaggerating to say that 100,000 shares of short stocks were covered today. Europe at first supplied the buyers and after that the happy bulls sold stocks to the frightened bears. Chicago was a tremendous buyer, and at seems that the decline in wheat and corn has made that contingent very bullish. In all this buoyancy there was one weak stock and that was New England, which declined 5 per cent on the absorption by the New York and New Haven and Hartford of the Housatonic road. This is another counter movement against the New England by its great adversary, and we think the result will be a receiver for the New York and New England railroad. The New Haven will secure control of this property some day, but not at present figures. The business done on the floor was enormous and we think the activity will continue. In the last hour the market sold off all around on account of the rise in wheat and corn, and it is remarked the very property some day, but not at present figures. The business done on the floor was enormous and we think the activity will continue. In the last hour the market sold off all around on account of the rise in wheat and corn, and it is remarked to be explained to see how our market sympathizes with the Chicago grain market. In other weards the weather out west and the reports regarding the growing crop are at present the great factors in speculation. As regards the course of prices for the near future, we would not advise friends to buy on this bulge, but would wait until the bears try their hand at it again and then would buy.

pool would lead to an advance here. This expectation was, however, disappointed. An improvement of perhaps 3 points was established on the first call by the execution of some few buying orders, but immediately thereafter great pressure to sell long cotton became apparent, and prices rapidly gave way until by 12:30 they were some 5 points below Saturday evenings figures. The weakness today in our market seems to have proceeded primarily from the selling out of long cotton as a result of the apprehension felt by holders of the passage of the anti-option bill. In addition to this, the emphatically improved character of the crop accounts coming to hand this morning have intensified the weakness and deprived the market of any support whatever based upon the theory of crop damage. The government estimate of acreage is not generally accepted. During the afternoon the market continued featureless, closing finally quiest at about the lowest of the day. It seems questionable whether prices in America are likely to decline much farther if the foreign markets maintain their relative position. The weakness here and the comparative strength abroad has already led to a considerable transfer of holdings from the American to the foreign market. In other words, futures which had previously been sold here are being covered and sold again abroad. The extent to which Liverpool shall be able to absorb such sales the measure of resistance which the market shall show to any further decline.

By Private Wire to A. P. Youngblood.

NEW YORK, June 13—This morning Liverpool was decidedly better than had been expected, the market there really showing a decline of but 1-84d from Saturday's figures, notwithstanding the discouraging and depressing advices cabled from this side that day, our friends attributing the steadiness of that market to the prospective good trade demand which is looked forward to, Manchester reports reading somewhat better than they have in the recent peat, which seems to bear this expectation out, while here an inquiry for spot cotton is an evidence of the fact, though the business done in spots is of course facilitated by a desire on the part of holders, owing to the approach of summer, to reduce their holdings, and in meeting the market sales are more readily effected than they were. In fact, tha basis of these sales is by no means as good as it was six weeks back. The price of spot now more nearly approximates the price of contracts than has been the case during the past season. Here the first prices were at an advance of 263 points. This, however, was almost immediately lost when it became apparent that there was considerable cotton for sale, the bulk of the offerings and selling coming from houses representing a Wall street interest. Reports from the south, outside of the overflowed districts are generally favorable. It begins to look, however, as if the quantity of cotton lost by the high waters is somewhat in excess of what was generally expected some time ago, and it cotton lost by the high waters is somewhat in excess of what was generally expected some time ago, and it would seem as if this matter will be a factor of some nce when it can finally be determined what it

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 13—The event of today in the wheat pit was the covering of a line of 1,000,000 bushels by Charley Wright. He has been short this line for a considerable time, having put out the bulk of it, it was supposed, at 82@85c, and not only stood by it on the recent bulge to 85c, but added considerably to it. On the break today he seems to have concluded that it was the proper place to cover, and began to buy in. He was joined by Cudahy, Linn and other big shorts. Their purchases, all told, are said to have reached over 5,000,000 bushels today. From a variety of causes the first sales were at 1½c from Saturday. With some fluctuations the market railled steadily from the start bulse was fairly well maintained. Offerings at the opening were immense, and the initial transactions were at 14@1% decline, the country being a free seller as also local operators. Fine weather all over the west and large receipts, both present and prospective, were the factors which caused the early weakness. At the decline a good demand sprang up, and the market graduly advanced 2½@2% on covering by shorts and on investment buying by local operators, many thinking the price low enough for the present. The market ruled steady for a while, reacted ½c, changed some, and at the close July had gained ½@%c and September ½@%c.

markets at the start similarly affected provisions for a few moments. There was a very sudden rally in hog products, a strong market succeeding the momen-tary weakness at the opening. The chief feature of the day's business was the buying for the account of Wright of about 7,000,000 pounds of ribs. Such heavy purchases advanced the price. Lard and pork also re-covered from the early weakness and closed with an Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter. By Frivate Wire to A. P. Youngblood.

CHICAGO, Jrne 13.—A very active and a large trade have been the features of the grain and provision markets throughout the day. Under the pressure of stop orders, large receipts and lower cables, the opening on wheat was about 11-2 cents lower than the very lowest prices of Saturday. There was large buying from the start, principally by a few local shorts and exporters. One large short is supposed to have taken nearly three million bushels. The crops of the world are million bushels. The crops of the world are must necessarily be very active. If exporters continue to buy as they did today, the lowest price reached today is likely to be the bottom for a time. The corn market was flooded with outside orders to buy. This, together with the local shorts, caused a steady advance with very few reactions from the opening to the close. The opening was about 11-4 cents off from Saturday's close, all of which recovered and an advance of fully 1 cent per bushel from Saturday's close was established for the day. It is evident that the speculators in the corn belt are disposed to buy around 45 cents. Shorts were satisfied with the profits, making large purchases around the opening. Under the pressure of extraordinarily large receipts ofts were almost panicky at the opening, but finally closed strong, fully 1-2 cent per bushel higher than Saturday.

Provisions opened stronger at about Saturday. By Frivate Wire to A. P. Youngblood.

Mr. Challes A. Verses, one of the boot

Mr. Charles A. Lamar, one of the best posted ball men in Atlanta, has seen Colcologh pitch ball and knows bim well. Here is what he says about the wonder who will war a uniform for Atlanta tomorrow.

Editor Constitution—Colcoloush is a great "ind" for the Atlantas. He will undoubtedly fitch them to the top of the heap if the team will only give him first-class support. He is a great pitcher and also one of the most remarkable all-round ball players in the country loday.

mrable all-round ball players in the country body.

Colcolough began his career as a ball player in Charleston and his first work was that of either. He rapidly developed into one of the most skillful and accurate amateur back-staps the writer has ever seen. His throwing to second could not be excelled. Then he played at first, second, short and third and thoutfield, and played them all well at that. After old man Anson secured Luby the Charleston team was greatly weakened in the box, and it occurred to Colcolouch that he tight make a pitcher also, and he did. So when Anson returned to Charleston the next season he wanted Colcolough, and wanted him bad. Anson is the best judge of a ball player in this country, and he considered Colcolough on the wasted colleging young pitchers he had ever seen.

Colcolough possesses great speed, good com-

Dismond Dust.

Berryhill was out for a while yesterday and says that he is feeling much better. He won't be able to play ball, however, for some time.

If Hill is in good condition he will work in center today. If not Friend will take his place in center.

Clingman made a desperate effort to spike Ardner yesterday at second. Such ball playing should be most severely dealt with.

BIG LEAGUE GAMES.

Columbia, S. C., June 13.—(Special.)—The South Atlantic Baseball League is in a little trouble. The club at Winston, N. C., is considerably behind in its accounts, and it is not at all certain that the club will fill its scheduled engagements. The franchise of the club will be taken by Raleigh, N. C., Savannah or Augusta. The three other clubs are in very good shape, and quite willing to continue the regular season.

HO. FOR THE CAMP.

The Fourth Battalion Leaves for Grimn

GREAT TIME IS EXPECTED

The Field and Staff Officers-A Week of Pleasure in Store for the Boys-A Fine Battalion.

of Georgia volunteers will leave this morning for Camp Northen. It will be a ride of only a few miles, and the soldiers will experience for the first time the hardships and pleasures of camp busy with their preparations, and the fun of the encampment has been the absorbing topic of conversation.

The prospect for a week's outing in regular army style, away from the heat and dust of the city, and in the beautiful woods around Griffin, has been enough to stir the heart of the soldier, and it's a wonder that they have found time to think about anything else.

It will not be fun altogether, however,
They will

after the boys get into camp. They will have to work hard enough during the day, and under the heat of the warm sun that will make the beads of perspiration roll down their faces, they will no doubt wish themselves back in Atlanta. But then when the breezes come tripping in after nightfall and the katydids commence to sing in the trees, they will find a sufficient recompense in the smile of the fair ladies and forget the earlier of the soldier in the and forget the cares of the soldier in the gay dance. And the long, cool walks about the encampment will no doubt be enjoyed to the fullest extent by the lovers of the promenade.

Yesterday being the last day for their preparations, the boys presented a lively appearance, and the atmosphere in their neighborhood was scarcely quiet for a single moment during the day.

Every soldier is required by the commanding officers to carry a full satchel manding otheres to carry a full satcher of underclothing and other wear. He must have at least two standing collars, two pairs of gloves, one black cravat, one quilt or comfort, two sheets, two towels, a comb and brush, and a cake of soap. These were and brush, and a cake of soap. These were sent to the armories yesterday afternoon, packed in satchels with the names of the owners attached thereto, except the quilts, which were folded up and attached to the satchels.

Each company will carry its own provis-ions, and a good assortment of hams, bacon, pickles, canned goods and other articles have been secured by the commissary ser-gents.

have been secured by the commissary sergeants.

A fuller number than was first expected will go into the camp this morning, and each of the four companies, besides a complete corps of officers, will carry a fine complement of men.

Field and staff Officers.

The field and staff officers are Lieutenant Commanding W. L. Calhoun, Adjutant A. P. Woodward, Lieutenants Eugene Hardeman, commissary; Lieutenanth Arnold Broyles, quartermaster; Lieutenant N. O. Harris, surgeon.

The non-commissioned officers are Sergeant Major Clarence Everett, Quartermaster Sergeant Louis H. Kennan, Ordnance Sergeant O. S. Nunnally, Color Sergeant Charles T. Rodgers.

The Companies.

The Companies.

The officers in command of Company A, the Gate City Guard, are Captain W. J. Kendrick, Lieutenant Charles M. Roberts and Lieutenant L. D. White.

The officers of Company B, the Atlanta Rifles, are Lieutenant Commanding Joseph V. H. Nash and Lieutenant W. W. Richardson.

The officers of Company C, the Grady Cadets, are Lieutenant Commanding Thomas L. Hardin and Lieutenant Mack Laird. The Companies.

The officers of Company D, the Atlanta

The officers of Company D, the Atlanta Zouaves, are Lieutenant Commanding Walter E. Dean, Lieutenant Amos Baker and Lieutenant J. E. Roberson.

The train that will carry the battalion to Griffin will be a special of the Central, and will leave the passenger depot at 7:15 o'clock.

The Fourth battalion band will go down with the companies. A large crowd of citizens will no doubt be present at the depot to give the boys a parting salute.

Orders are coming in from Montgomery, Opelika, Macon, Americus, Savannah and all leading points for space in sleepers on different dates mentioned, particularly in the special that leaves at 1 o'clock p. m., on the 17th Instant.

CITY BRIEFS.

There will be another rehearsal of the music There will be another rehearsal of the music for the southern convention in the hall at the Girls' High school this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The singers are requested to be present promptly at the time, and all singers are invited. They have some beautiful music in preparation, such as the grand solo and chorus, "O'er Forest, O'er Mountain and Meadow," Trom "Meass in Exprt" and Weber's heautiful from "Moses in Egypt," and Weber's beautiful chorus, "Thy Voice, O Harmony," as well as solos, quartets, etc., by the leading singers of solos, quartets, etc., by the leading singers or the city. This will be a grand meeting of sev-eral thousand people from all parts of the south, and it is hoped the people of Atlanta will heartily co-operate with the committees in making preparations to entertain them in an appropriate manner. There will probably be a chorus of seventy-five voices.

A festival will be held Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Hunter street Christian church. The festival will be given at 89 Capitol avenue, the residence of the church's pas-tor, Rev. C. P. Williamson. Members are urged to attend. Friends are invited.

Witnessed by a Drummer on a Trip from Florida.

Witnessed by a Drummer on a Trip from Florida.

Thomasville, Ga., June 13.—(Special.)—Mr. Tom Dickerson, representing a New York rubber company, was in the city yesterday. He is just from Apalachicola, Fla., and it is not likely that he will soon forget the trip. Mr. Dickerson was at Apalachicola Monday afternoon, when the negro who committed rape on a young white girl over on the point, was brought to town and lynched. He says there must have been two or three hundred bullets fired into the swaying body of the negro. Coming up the river he was not without an adventure. A young business man from Bainbridge was on top of the steamboat showing off his expertness with the rifle for the benefit of his lady friends. Lowering his rifle for some purpose it was accidentally discharged. The bullet, which was of heavy caliber, passed through the hurricane deck to the saloon below, where it entered the back of a chair. A lady was occupying the chair at the time, but just as the bullet sped downward happened to lean over in conversation with a companion. The young gentleman, as well as the lady who came so near being the victim of his carclessness, was completely overcome with nervousness at the accident.

Attacked by a Lunatic.

Attacked by a Lunatic. Savannah, Ga., June 13.—(Special.)—Deputy Sheriff Charles Westcott was cut up by a colored lunatic named Perry today. Perry was examined last week, declared sane and discharged from custody. He became violent today and Westcott was sent to arrest him. Perry drew a big knife, nearly cut Westcott's nose off, jobbed him in the hand and back, and would have killed him if he had not broke away. Perry is at large in the swamp.

It Is a Genuine Treat.

We mean Hoyt's Jersey butter, beyond all doubt the best butter ever brought to Atlanta; uniformity in grade, richness of flavor, absolute purity, are its qualities. It is all bought from one dairy, situated in the bive-grass country, and hence always uniform, always of that fine rich color and flavor which hive grass alone imparts to fine Jersey butter. As soon as we receive it we put it in a refrigerator and it is delivered to your house in an ice box. Now, isn't it a treat to have no more poor butter, no more stale butter, no more penetted butter, but instead, always the same high grade Jersey? We are furnishing that quality of butter every day, and can supply you. Ask any of our many pleased customers about our butter and then, take their advice and come and do likewise, and the butter problem will trouble you no longer.

Another treat is our Rijamo coffee. We call it a treat because we mean it, for nothing is more exhilarating and enjoyable than a cup of fine coffee, and our Rijamo is the highest grade coffee that can be found. It is a combination of Mandeling Java, Mocha and Maracaibo, and the blend gives a coffee of fine aroma and of elegant flavor. It is always sold at 35 cents, cheaper than you can buy a lower grade elsewhere.

We also propose to offer to our customers some big bargains. How is salmon at 15 cents per can? That is the price it will go at for the next week; also, fine brook trout at 15-cents, fine imported herring at 15 cents, canneed mackerel at 15 cents, Sunbeam corn at 15 cents, fine imported herring at 15 cents, contoned mackerel, herring and Sunbeam corn at 15 cents ac can each. Isn't that cheap enough? Our low price on blackberry jam at 60 cents. We expect you are about out of all of your own, so come and get some, which is just as good and about as cheap as you can make it.

Our fresh tock of imported biscuits and crackers came yesterday. We have then all or your make it.

Our fresh stock of imported biscuits and crackers came yesterday. We have them both by the pound and in one-pound boxes. Come around and test them. At the same time we received a fresh stock of prunes, figs, currants and evaporated apples, apricots and peaches. At this season nothing has ever been brought to Atlanta as fine as our new prunes. The apples, apricots and peaches are also as fine in quality as can be curred.

COMPROMISED

Ryan's Secured and Unsecured Creditors Come to Terms.

THE CONTEMPT CASE UNSETTLED

Of the $170,000 in the Receiver's Hands the Mortgagees Get Half and the Creditors Half.

The Ryan case is setttled so far as the fight between the secured and unsecured creditors of Stephen A. Ryan are con-

The settlement is a compromise, and was eached yesterday afternoon when Judge Marshall Clarke signed an order of court carrying out the provisions of the agree-

The agreement is as follows:

John Ryan and John F. Ryan, holders of mortgages on the property of Stephen A. Ryan, take half the money in the hands of the receiver and obligate themselves to pay the amounts due the Atlanta banks by Stephen A. Ryan. They also agree to pay the mortgage of Eugene Kelly, of New York.

The unsecured creditors agree to take the other half of the money in the hands of the receiver, and also agree that the title to the real estate held by John F. Ryan, which has been contested by the creditors, shall be confirmed in John F. Ryan. A decree of court so confirms the title in Mr.

Rvan. The amount in the hands of the receiver, after paying the Claffin mortgage, which the court accepted as part of the bid for the stock of goods, is about $170,000. For half of this, or about $85,000, John Ryan and John F. Ryan cancel their mortgages and pay the Atlanta banks and Eugene Kelly, while John F. Ryan gets a clear title to the real estate which was in contro versy. He had boughtoit from his brother, but the title had been attacked on the ground of fraud and collusion. The unsecured creditors get the other half, or about $85,000, and will settle among themselves how it is to be divided. of them have claimed that they identified their goods in the stock held by the receiver, and by law were entitled to reclaim their property.

This disposes of all the assets in the hands of the receiver. Now comes the question about the assets which Judge Gober said ought to be in the hands of the receiver. Since the main feature of the case has been compromised and the fight between secured and unsecured creditors is declared off, and the mortgages are out of the case, the attention of the court will soon center on the assets supposed to be missing. This feature of the case, known as the contempt feature, has been referred to an auditor, Mr. H. C. Peeples.

As the matter stands now the hearing of the case before the auditor bears on the division of the remaining $85,000 between numerous unsecured creditors, some of them claiming a right to recover the full value of identified goods. It is thought that this branch of the case may be soon disposed of. At any rate it is believed that since the main feature of the case is out of the way, the contempt case will be pressed to an issue by Mr. Ryan's counsel. Auditor Peeples has no less a task than to decide whether or not Mr. Ryan had the $120,000 of assets which Judge Gober said he had and must produce Some evidence has been submitted on this feature of the case incidentally, while the auditor was trying the branch which was compromised. Now the whole case that was tried before Judge Gober will be opened again before the auditor, if the line marked out by the supreme court is fol-lowed. In a word, Steve Ryan's second trial for liberty will begin.

The Compromise Quickly Made. The negotiations for the settlement were short. Three or four days ago Colonel Albert Cox made a suggestion to Mr. Jack Spalding, and the suggestion resulted in the settlement made yesterday. Mr. Jack Spalding and Colonel N. J. Hammond were the leading attorneys representing unsecured creditors in the settlement, Jackson & Jackson represented the mort-gagees, John and John F. Ryan, and Albert Cox, Walter R. Brown, and Hopkins & Son represented Stephen A. Ryan. Nearly all the lawyers in Atlanta are connected with the case, most of them rep-resenting unsecured creditors, whose name

The result of the settlement is that the mortgagees, John and John F. Ryan, get about half the amount of their mortgages, after paying the claims they have assumed. The unsecured creditors have claims aggregating about $600,000, and get so far $85,000, which is about 14 per cent. They can now fight for more under the contempt feature of the case. They were once of-fered a compromise of 30 cents on the dol-lar all around, including the mortgagees. To do as well now they will have to realize in the contempt case as much as Judge

Gober says is in it. The Costs of Litigation It is impossible to get an estimate of the cost of litigation in this case, but it will be enormous. After stating the terms of the settlement Mr. Tom Cobb Jackson remarked that the parties to the compromise had probably gotten as much as they would have received if they had fought it out to a finish with the increased cost of

As the case now stands, Jackson & Jackson are out of it as representatives of the mortgagees, but remain as attorneys for the receiver, together with Calho

FOR THE DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

Mrs. E. M. Davis Brings Suit Against th Atlanta and Chattahoochee Railway Co. The first suit resulting from the accident that happened a few days ago was filed in the clerk's office yesterday.

It was the suit of Mrs. Millie Davis against the Atlanta and Chattahoochee Railroad Company for the death of her hus-band, Mr. E. M. Davis, and she claims band, Mr. E. M. Davis, and she claims damages in the sum of $25,000.

The petition recites that on June the 10th her husband was a passenger on the Atlanta and Chattahoochee railroad and that just as the engine reached the city limits near Kennedy street the horrible accident occurred. She charges that the engine was running at the rate of forty miles an hour and that when the engineer reached the grade he failed to retard the speed of its motion. The car in which her husband was seated was just in front of the engine, and the force with which the locomotive was run by the engineer caused the unfortunate accident to occur. The coach was thrown from the track and rolled down the embankment, killing her husband instantly.

She charges that the railroad was negligent in using an engine along the track that was intended for electric cars only.

She charges that the railroad was negligent in using an engine along the track that was intended for electric cars only, and was not graded on a level for the use of locomotive engines; also that the engine was pushing the cars from the rear instead of pulling them in the usual manner, and that the coaches so pushed were open cars intended to be operated only by electricity. She furthermore charges that the rate of speed in going down the grade was forty miles an hour.

She alleges that her husband at the time of his death was thirty years of age and that he was earning at the rate of $2.50 a day. He left two children to be supported by the plaintiff and she thought the amount for which she sued was small enough for her great affliction.

BALLARD HOUSE

A New and Elegant Hotel on Peachtree One of the best and most convenient hotels in the city is the Ballard house. Its location is just opposite the governor's mansion. It has suitegand single rooms. Every convenience. The choicest fare.

Two Shares Get a Lot.

The High Point Cumberland Island Company gives a lot 50x150 feet, near the hotel, to every person who subscribes for two shares of its stock, which costs $100 a share payable in four monthly installments of $25 each, to be paid when 650 shares are subscribed. The money paid in on these shares goes into the hands of trustees, who guarantee that it will be applied to building a first-class modern hotel, a railroad from the hotel to the ocean beach, bathhouses, to fencing and stocking with game the two-thousand-acre game park, and an artesian well; and all of these comforts are to be owned by the stockholders who take shares, and on their stock it is believed they will receive a good interest dividend and at the same time own a lot for every two shares taken. Call and see us and get particulars and secure shares and a lot.

Today the democratic state convention of Ohio will be called to order at Columbus Its action will be invested with more than ordinary political significance, because the Buckeye State has, in ex-Governor Campbell, possible presidential material. The work of the convention, therefore, is of more than local importance, and may be attended with results which will make themselves felt at Chicago.

Making themselves felt with level headed purchasers are our peerless Trunks and Valises. The bargains are not attempted sensationalism. Sound reasons underlied this business movement. The excited rush of trade, such as that now seeking of traveling things, is only a logical result of real causes.

There is only one great sort of Clothing store possible these days—the store that manufactures and sells its own goods. Isn't it plain as the sun? There are, say ninety average-sized men out of every hundred. They're all the manufacturer who wholesales his products makes for. The dealer who buys it gets for no more. We make for the whole hundred—the slim and the stout, the large and the unusual sized We gather the best things that are to be had, and we gather for everybody's wants.
